A WORLD OF LAUGHERS MOURN THE LOSS OF DAVE TODAY

The man who can make the nation laugh until its sides ache is worth while; we need him. That is why the nation today is mourning the loss of Dave Montgomery, famous comedian partner of Fred Stone. Dave died last night at the Presbyterian hospital after several weeks of game fighting for life.

His real name was David Craig Montgomery—but that does not matter—we all knew him as just plain Dave, or as the tinman in the "Wizard of Oz," Solomon Scarlet in "The Girl From Up There," or Kid Connor in "The Red Mill." He was also popular as a co-star with Stone in "The Old Town," with Elsie Janis and Stone in "The Lady of the Slipper," and their latest triumph, "Chin Chin."

Dave was taken sick while appearing in Chicago in "Chin Chin." His partner, Stone, cut the tour of the play in Montreal short to come and be with Dave in his last hour.
